

NATIONAL YANG-MING UNIVERSITY, TAIWAN (Global Partner)

WHO, LAO PDR OFFICE

Center for Global Health

The College of Public Health and Human Sciences founded the Center for Global Health in 2014 with a mission to bring Oregon State University to the world, and to bring the world to Oregon State.

The center serves as a platform to connect faculty and students with a range of international partners to develop innovative approaches to promote equitable population health around the world.

We fulfill our mission through five key areas:

- Conducting collaborative global health development projects and research
- Training the next generation of leaders and professionals in global health
- Providing innovative and appropriate technical assistance to the center's global partners
- Participating in multi-way health development programming, education and training with our partners
- Engaging the OSU community and connecting it with the world in collaborative efforts to promote global health

For more information:

Center for Global Health

College of Public Health and Human Sciences

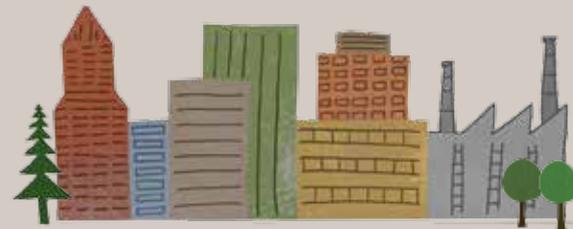

Director

Chunhuei Chi

chunhuei.chi@oregonstate.edu

cfgh@oregonstate.edu

health.oregonstate.edu/global-health

BURUNDI

Our faculty and students facilitate expertise across Oregon State to conduct research, initiate health development programs and projects, and develop innovative education and training programs in collaboration with international partners and communities. Our efforts are especially directed at strengthening the capacity of our partner communities across the world to promote community ownership of equitable and sustainable health development. While the center is focused on health development, our work is founded on an interdisciplinary approach to promote the health and general well-being of our partner communities.

Making small changes in the big world and big changes in small worlds

We strive to make small changes in the world through collaborative efforts to improve health and well-being around the world. Our partners include non-government organizations (NGOs), community-based organizations, academic institutions, government agencies and UN agencies. At the same time, we commit to making big changes in small worlds through ongoing collaborations with our partners in targeted communities to promote comprehensive development in health and well-being and make major changes over the long term. Our approach recognizes a responsibility to our global community, while rooting our work in the fundamental rights to human dignity and self-determination.

KOLLA HEALTH CENTER, ETHIOPIA

Center for Global Health

Promoting equitable and sustainable community ownership of health and well-being

SOUTH SUDAN

ESMERALDA, ECUADOR

Our work is organized into several thematic groups that reflect the expertise of our faculty, yet are flexible to allow for interdisciplinary collaboration. As the center grows, we expect the number and names of thematic groups to evolve.

- Health Systems Strengthening and Governance
- Adolescent Reproductive and Sexual Health
- Rural and Migrant Workers' Health
- Global Mental Health
- Environment and Water
- Global Health Workforces
- Global Occupational Health and Safety
- Disability Across the World
- Aging Across the World
- Women's Health and Gender Inequity
- Food Security and Community Nutrition

THE EQUATOR

JORDAN

ETHIOPIA

OUR MISSION The center is a community of learning and service that brings together faculty, students and staff at Oregon State with alumni and partners around the world to address current and future global health challenges.