

COH workload guidance related to Core Ed courses.

Effort for faculty submitting a Core Education Statement of Intent (SOI) and the subsequent CADI training (+ other training by Core Ed Category requirement) is considered a part of their general teaching and advising effort. This should be reported in the faculty's activities during the review process. The SOI and CADI/other training furthers the development of a CIM proposal and therefore helps the faculty make progress in a proposal an effort that has historically been a part of the course development/redevelopment process. Faculty should communicate with the school head to discuss timing and effort for the development to be completed once Core Ed courses are approved through the curricular process, following our college's faculty workload guidelines, including if multiple modalities are to be developed/redeveloped (on-campus and Ecampus).

Note: We are learning more each day about the compensation for faculty completing required training for Core Education. For completing the CADI training, faculty will receive an honorary stipend of $500 distributed as payroll. For Ecampus development training it is $500 or redevelopment training, $350. For WIC seminar completion is a $500 stipend. It is expected the other trainings will also include a stipend that are still to be announced.
