CENTER FOR HEALTHY AGING RESEARCH (CHAR)
Membership Application Form

The Center for Healthy Aging Research (CHAR) is a community of Oregon State University scholars committed to investigate and promote healthy aging. The overarching research goal for CHAR is to facilitate and conduct transdisciplinary research to understand multiple interacting aging processes that contribute to healthspan – not simply living longer, but living better. Research dissemination, outreach, and education are also important goals.

Advantages of CHAR membership include: 1) a regular forum to exchange ideas and form collaborative research teams; 2) access to the LIFE Registry, a human subjects registry of hundreds of adults over age 50 in the state of Oregon who agree to be contacted to participate in research; 3) access to funding for the summer LIFE Scholars program, which funds research by students in conjunction with faculty mentors; 4) leadership opportunities; and 5) being involved and listed as a Center member, which can bring visibility and advocacy to your work in aging.
